

Miracles

What exactly is a miracle? Something, well. . . miraculous. Supernatural. Above-and-beyond the everyday, a gift from God. Babies are definitely miracles, spontaneous healings are miracles, even changes of heart are deemed as such. Do miracles still happen today? Of course! Every time someone beats the odds against cancer, it's a miracle. The miraculous is all around us, but sometimes we tend to overlook the smaller kinds of miracles.

Here my list of library-related miracles. Chose one and make it happen!

- * Teaching a child to read opens him/her a whole new world of miracles.
- * A library room with shelves full of wonderful Christian books, a room with windows, sunbeams in winter and birds to watch in spring . . . which makes it the most inspiring meeting room in our church
- * Coming across a book that really speaks to one's heart and addresses the problem we are trying to figure out for ourselves & pass it on to someone else
- * An unexpected $$ donation for new books ☺
- * Finding a box of donated books when coming to work downstairs – THANK YOU!
- * People who are diligent about returning our “treasures” in good condition and on time
- * The smile on the face of someone who is reading or read to. Pick someone who cannot read yet or cannot read anymore and read to them. The experience will be truly wonder-full for both of you.

Enjoy all the miracles around YOU and tell others about them.
